'I come from a culture where mental illness can still be a stigma. As a result, when I started feeling low in mood and anxious about things, I hid my feelings, keeping them to myself. I hoped they would go away, as moods can change. But instead of going away, these feelings became worse. As time went on, I was less able to hide my low mood and anxiety. I knew I had to get help, but didn't know how.

It was very hard to even think about sharing how I felt – even with my GP. So I continued to struggle along on my own, while feeling more and more unwell. Finally, I had no choice but to admit to myself, that I couldn't go on and that I really needed to get the help that I needed.

I booked an appointment with my GP. It was difficult sharing how I had been feeling, but I was encouraged by his compassion. It seemed he really listened and I didn't feel judged or that I was less than.

We agreed that he would refer me to the talking therapies service. Speaking to a professional there was the start of things changing for the better. I look back and think I need not have delayed seeking help earlier. Speaking about my mental health and receiving the help and support I need has given me back my life.

I want to encourage you to get help if you need help. This booklet has a huge list of services. Whatever your situation, you will find a service that caters to your need.'

HOW CAN THIS BOOKLET HELP YOU?

This booklet offers information and tips for managing your mental health and wellbeing during the coronavirus outbreak (also known as COVID-19) and beyond.

Feeling anxious and stressed during difficult times is completely normal, particularly if you're social distancing or self-isolating. You may feel bored, frustrated or lonely. You may also be low, worried or anxious, or concerned about your finances, your health or those close to you.

It's important to remember that it is OK to feel this way and that everyone reacts differently. Remember, this situation is temporary and, for most of us, these feelings will pass. Staying at home may be difficult, but you are helping to protect yourself and others by doing it. Taking care of your mind as well as your body is really important while staying at home because of coronavirus (COVID-19).

The good news is that there are simple steps you can take to care for your mental health and wellbeing during the pandemic and beyond it.

The tips and advice here are things you can do now to help you keep on top of your mental wellbeing. Trying them will help you to cope better and improve how you may be feeling while staying at home. There are also many services in the booklet that you can contact, during the pandemic and after, to get further support if you feel you need it.

5+1 WAYS TO WELLBEING: TOP TIPS FOR FEELING BETTER AND BOOSTING YOUR MOOD DURING COVID

5+1 steps you can use to care for yourself if you are feeling anxious, lonely or low in mood. Trying these things could help you feel more positive and able to get the most out of life.

1. CONNECT WITH OTHER PEOPLE: keep in touch with friends and family. Call them or use video-chat apps, which are very useful to aid this.
2. BE ACTIVE PHYSICALLY: being active is great for your physical health and fitness and also your mental wellbeing. Find something you enjoy doing and do it regularly!
3. TAKE NOTICE: Pay attention to the present moment (mindfulness): pay more attention to the present moment to improve your mental wellbeing. This includes your thoughts and feelings, your body and the world around you. Some people call this awareness 'mindfulness'. Mindfulness can help you enjoy life more and understand yourself better. Check out this link to find out more about mindfulness: <https://www.nhs.uk/conditions/stress->

anxiety-depression/mindfulness You can also check your mood using this simple mood self-assessment quiz: <https://www.nhs.uk/conditions/stress-anxiety-depression/mood-self-assessment>

4. KEEP LEARNING NEW SKILLS: learning new skills improves mental wellbeing by boosting self-confidence, raising self-esteem and helping you to build a sense of purpose. Try new hobbies that challenge, learn a new recipe or sign up for a course to learn something you're interested in.
5. GIVE: acts of giving and kindness help improve mental wellbeing by creating positive feelings and a sense of reward. It also gives you a feeling of purpose and self-worth. Offer to help a friend or family who is in need of support, consider volunteering in your community or help raise funds for your favourite or local charity.
6. CREATE: Make something – take something from one state to another, so you can see the progress that you have made. Creativity can:

stimulate imagination and reflection; change perspectives; inspire change and growth; provide cathartic release and promote healing. Individual experiences of the arts can lead to recovery from illness, injury or addiction to the prevention of disease or infirmity. Paint... Make... Perform! .

STRESS BUSTERS

- CALMING BREATHING EXERCISES
- AVOID UNHEALTHY HABITS: reduce or cut out alcohol, smoking and caffeine as a way of coping.
- HAVE SOME 'ME TIME': set aside a couple of hours or evenings regularly for some quality 'me time' away from your other responsibilities.
- TRY TO BE POSITIVE: look for the positives in life, and things for which you're grateful. Try writing down three things that went well, or for which you're grateful, at the end of every day.
- RELAXATION: consider what helps you to relax and do it, such as listening to music, yoga, going for a walk, dancing, reading etc.

HERE ARE THE SERVICES YOU CAN CONTACT FOR HELP AND SUPPORT

If you have tried all these tips and still think you need some more support, the rest of the information in this booklet is provided so you can decide which services would best suit your need. During lockdown, a tiny number of services have closed in order to comply with the lockdown restrictions. Where services are currently closed, they will re-open when lockdown has lifted in line with the government's guidance. You will find that the majority of services are still available through telephone, video calls and online.

'If you have tried all these tips and still think you need some more support, the rest of the information in this booklet is provided so you can decide which services would best suit your need.'

'If you are struggling with coping, feeling low or think you may be depressed, please seek help from your GP.'

YOUR GENERAL SERVICES

YOUR GP

If you are struggling with coping, feeling low or think you may be depressed please seek help from your GP in the first instance. Your GP continues to be the main referral route to other services (including those below). ## SERVICES FOR PEOPLE WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

BRENT INTEGRATED COMMUNITY LEARNING DISABILITY TEAM

The service provides specialist health support to enable adults with learning disabilities aged 18+ to be healthy, independent and valued members of their community. The team works closely with Brent's Disabled Children and Young People's Service (0-25) to ensure that young people under the care of this team make a successful transition to services provided by the Brent Integrated Learning Disability Team. The team undertakes a number of health and social care assessments. They also offer support to carers of residents with learning disabilities.

The Team works with adults who have learning disabilities in various settings such as their home, care homes, hospitals and support with their transition to adult services.

The team includes community learning disability nurses, psychiatrists, psychologists, physiotherapists, speech and language and occupational therapists, social workers, care assessors, a bereavement therapist and therapist.

In normal times, the team sees people in their own home or at an activity centre they may be attending. Sometimes, if people are very unwell or troubled, people will be seen in hospital. Visit www.brent.gov.uk/services-forresidents/adult-social-care/learning-disabilities for more information and eligibility criteria.

Opening times are Monday-Friday 9am-5pm.

Carers may self-refer, or request referral from their GP, Adult Social Care and Children Services.
